Preface

I am extremely grateful to the following colleagues for information and advice; John Freeman, Helen James, Arthur Williamson, the late Richard Edes, Lord Harries of Pentregarth, Geoffrey Williams, Charles Jones, Yusaku Horiuchi and the anonymous readers at Palgrave Macmillan. Veronica, as always, gave me unstinted support. I owe a great deal to my students at the Centre of International Studies in Cambridge for their responses to my ideas and to those who provided me with the opportunity to present some of my arguments at their various institutions: Brian Bond at the University of London, Ralph Pettman at the University of Melbourne, Jean Gardini at the University of Bath, Richard King at the Royal Naval College, Dartmouth, the Pavate Fellowship in New Delhi, the members of the British International History Group and Murielle Cozette and Bill Tow at the Australian National University in Canberra. Naturally, all the mistakes and misjudgements are my own.
